

MARRIAGE CEREMONY

We are gathered here today to witness and to celebrate the marriage of _____ and _____, who stand before us, and who are about to promise to one another their loyalty from this day on. We are privileged to be with them and to share their happiness in making this important commitment. It is a union into which they are not entering carelessly, but rather a union they enter with love and mutual respect.

The union of wives in heart, body and soul is intended for their mutual joy, and for the help and comfort given to one another in times of prosperity and times of adversity.

Therefore, marriage is not to be entered into lightly or unadvisedly, but reverently and deliberately, and with respect.

We are here then, to celebrate the love which _____ and _____ have for each other and to give social recognition and official sanction to their decision to accept each other as wives, (please join hands)

_____, do you take _____ to be your lawfully wedded Wife?

_____, do you take _____ to be your lawfully wedded Wife?

As covenant and pledge of your mutual desire to enter into marriage to each other, please repeat after me:

_____ repeat after me.

I take thee _____ to be my wife, to have and to hold from this day forward; for better or for worse; in sickness and in health; for richer or for poorer,

to love and to cherish; until death do us part.

_____ repeat after me:

I take thee _____ to be my wife, to have and to hold from this day forward; for better or for worse; in sickness and in health; for richer or for poorer,
to love and to cherish; until death do us part.

Do you have a ring that represents your commitment and your love? In offering this ring, repeat after me: I give you this ring as a symbol of my love, and my friendship, and my trust, and my loyalty, and with this ring I thee wed.

Do you have a ring that represents your commitment and your love? In offering this ring, repeat after me: I give you this ring as a symbol of my love, and my friendship, and my trust, and my loyalty, and with this ring I thee wed.

By these acts and words you have taken upon yourselves the sacred alliance of wives. May you always love each other as you do today, and may your love guide you through your life together and give you the strength and hope necessary to make your marriage a success.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the State of Nevada, I now pronounce you wives.

You may kiss one another.
